The Legacy of the International HBV Meeting

Since its inception in 1985, the International HBV Meeting has served as the leading global forum for researchers to exchange discoveries, challenges, and insights in an interactive and collaborative setting. It remains the only international scientific conference dedicated exclusively to the hepatitis B (HBV) and hepatitis D (HDV) viruses.

Each year, the meeting brings together the world's foremost experts alongside emerging scientists studying HBV, HDV, and hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC). Many of the most significant breakthroughs in HBV and HDV research were first presented at this meeting, driving progress in drug discovery, therapeutic development, and our broader understanding of these infections.
